Hi all---some of the websites might require a short search on "grants" to get you to the right web information.

For all you informal-type educators out there,

If you're not a regular reader of NSTA Reports, they have a great section called "In Your Pocket" that lists available grant and award programs for science teachers, schools, and informal facilities (though mostly for the former). Here are a few for you to pass along to teachers interested in visiting your facility or working with you in partnership programs.

Target Field Trip Grants

Intel Community Grants

American Honda Foundation Grants

You can skim NSTA's online calendar for other grant and award announcements at:

<http://www.nsta.org/publications/calendar>

Look in the left sidebar for options to filter the list for "Grants/Fellowships."

Happy hunting.
